COMMUNITY OUTREACH SERIES

Over the last four years during the summer months, we have taken a well-deserved sabbatical from our Men's Development Series, in which we typically meet three times per month. This not only allows men to spend more quality time with their families on Saturday mornings, it also allows them to recharge their spiritual batteries, as well as enjoy their summer.

As an organization, we have adopted the Mount Vernon Avenue area as our primary community to "give back" and to provide support. This past summer we engaged with residents in the community to pray with them, minister to them and offer moral support.

We use the opportunity to introduce our organization to those within said community and the services in which we offer. Many of the residents have stated that they appreciate our support and that we have taken the time to reach out to them in an attempt to spiritually reconnect the community.

The Mount Vernon Avenue area is a predominantly African-American historic neighborhood in Columbus, Ohio. The neighborhood lies within the historic Near East Side community. The Mount Vernon Avenue area borders Interstates 71 and 670. Its main thoroughfares, Mount Vernon Avenue, Long Street, Atcheson Street, and Champion Avenue define the community's limits.
